

It's Tuesday, and my day starts at 6:00 a.m. when my alarm goes off. I get up and start getting ready for the day. I choose what I'm going to wear, wash my face, and do my hair. My mom is in the kitchen preparing breakfast; I hear the sound of the blender while the aroma of breakfast cooking reaches me. I sit at the table and chat with my mom about university topics. After breakfast, I go to my room to get my backpack ready; I pack my laptop because I'm going to need it, along with my food and water bottle. I also check if I have my notebooks and pens.

At 7:00 a.m., I'm on my way to the university. During the journey, I read and listen to music before arriving at the first stop, where I get off and walk to transfer to another form of transportation. At 8:00 a.m., I arrive at the university to attend my first class of the day, where I take some notes and pay attention to the professor's explanations. I focus on completing the math homework that's due tomorrow. During lunch, I spend time with my friends, chatting about university topics or life in general.

In the afternoon, I will continue doing more homework and will also play a little to relax before getting ready for the next day.